Client Onboarding — Message & Email Templates

Plug-and-play scripts for every step after a client says yes: kickoff, preview, go-live, and the care-plan welcome. Swap the [brackets] and send. Updated June 2026.

How to use these

- Replace every [bracket] with the client's real details before sending. The {{...}} pieces are the standard Peak 11 values (price, links) — set them once.
- Tone is intentionally plain. These read like a real person texting a small-business owner — no agency jargon. Keep it that way.
- Channel: text/SMS for quick touches, email when sending links the client should keep. Both versions are written to work either way — trim the greeting for a text.
- The standard values: Care Plan = $49/mo (hosting, updates, edits). One-time build is collected at the yes. Edits are requested by simply replying or texting Nate.

Template 1 — Welcome — “Here’s What Happens Next”

SEND VIA: Email (or text) | WHEN: Immediately after they say yes / pay

Subject: Welcome to Peak 11 — here’s what happens next, [First Name]

Hey [First Name],

Awesome — really glad we're doing this. Welcome aboard. Here's exactly what happens from here so you know what to expect:

1. I get to work. You don't have to do anything technical — I handle the whole build. I'll pull your best photos and reviews from your Google and Facebook pages myself.

2. One quick form (optional). If you want to add anything — services to highlight, a logo, specific photos — here's a 5-minute form: [INTAKE FORM LINK]. Totally fine to skip it; I've got what I need from our call.

3. First look in a few days. I'll send you a private link to your new site to review. You tell me what to tweak, I tweak it.

4. We go live. Once you love it, I connect your domain and your site is live for the world.

If anything comes to mind in the meantime — a photo, a service, a detail — just reply to this or text me anytime.

Talk soon,

Why this works

It removes all anxiety: the client just paid and the #1 fear is "now what do I owe them / what do I have to do?" This answers it in 4 steps and reassures them they don't have to lift a finger.

Template 2 — Preview Ready — “Your Site Is Ready, Take a Look”

SEND VIA: Email (or text) | WHEN: When the first draft is live on a preview link

Subject: Your new website is ready to look at ■

Hey [First Name],

Your new website is ready for a look. Here it is:

→ [PREVIEW LINK]

Open it on your phone and your computer — it's built to look sharp on both.

Take your time clicking through. When you're ready, just reply with anything you want changed — wording, photos, colors, a service to add, whatever. No request is too small, and edits are included.

A couple of things worth checking while you're in there:

- Is your phone number and contact info exactly right?
- Are the services listed the ones you most want to be known for?
- Anything missing that customers always ask you about?

If it's already looking good to you, just say the word and we'll get it live.

Pro move

Asking the three specific check questions keeps feedback focused and fast — instead of a vague “hmm let me think about it” that stalls the project. It also signals you sweat the details.

Template 3 — Go-Live — “You’re Live!” (+ Review & Referral Ask)

SEND VIA: Email (or text) | WHEN: The moment the domain is connected and the site is public

Subject: ■ You’re live! [yourbusiness.com] is officially up

Hey [First Name],

It's official — your new website is live for the whole world to see:

→ [LIVE SITE URL]

Congrats. You've now got a site that looks as good as the work you do, and it's working for you 24/7.

One small favor, if you're happy with it:

If the process was a good experience, a quick Google review means the world to a small business like mine — it's how I keep doing this. Here's the direct link, takes 30 seconds: [GOOGLE REVIEW LINK]

And if you know another local business owner whose website is rough (or who doesn't have one), send them my way — I'll take great care of them. Referrals are the best compliment I can get.

Thanks for trusting me with this. I'm around whenever you need anything.

Timing matters

Ask for the review at the peak moment — right when they see their finished site live and the pride hits. Pair the review ask with a referral ask while goodwill is highest; they cost nothing to bundle and compound your pipeline.

Template 4 — Care Plan Welcome — “You’re Covered” ($49/mo)

SEND VIA: Email | WHEN: When the client starts the $49/mo Care Plan (at go-live or upsell)

Subject: You're on the Care Plan — here's how to get edits anytime

Hey [First Name],

You're officially on the Peak 11 Care Plan — thanks for keeping me on the team. Here's exactly what that covers for your $49/month:

- ✓ Hosting & security — your site stays fast, online, and protected. You never touch a thing.
- ✓ Edits whenever you need them — new hours, new services, new photos, price changes, a seasonal promo. Just ask.
- ✓ I keep it current — small tune-ups and fixes so it never looks dated or breaks.
- ✓ Priority support — you're a member, so your requests jump the line.

How to request an edit — it's this easy:

Just text or email me what you want changed. Something like: "Hey, can you update our hours to 8–6 and add a photo of the new truck?" — that's it. I'll handle it and confirm when it's done.

No portals, no tickets, no logging into anything. You talk, I update.

Your plan renews automatically each month, and you can pause or cancel anytime — no contracts.

Glad to keep your site sharp for you. Send your first edit whenever you've got one.

Retention note

The whole point of the Care Plan is recurring, low-churn revenue ($49/mo). The message sells the convenience ("you talk, I update") and lowers cancel-anxiety ("no contracts") — which, counterintuitively, reduces churn. Make every edit fast and they'll never leave.

Peak 11 Media — internal onboarding kit. Sequence: (1) Welcome at yes → (2) Preview when the draft is ready → (3) Go-live + review/referral ask → (4) Care Plan welcome. Keep the voice human; swap the brackets; send.
